BEWARE OF THE SPURIOUS IMITATIONS AND SUBSTITUTES CALLED LOCAL BITTERS.

WORDS OF WARNING.

UNSCRUPULOUS dealers everywhere are too anxious to "turn a penny" to trouble themselves about any evil they may inflict on others, while endeavoring to satisfy their own greed for gain. Some of this class of speculators, in various parts of the country, are now engaged in the manufacture and sale of astringent and fiery nostrums, which they falsely represent to be wholesome tonics like

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS,

And endeavor to substitute for that standard restorative by offering them at cheaper rates.

The articles referred to are designated by different names, but they are alike in one respect, being uniformly made of the cheapest astringents and refuse liquor. To sell such poisons in disguise as medicines, is a criminal act, and ought to be visited with condign punishment; to swallow them is to endanger health and life.

It is not probable that persons who have once suffered from the effects of the burning fluids recommended as "appetizers," "stomachics," &c., will be caught a second time, for burnt children dread the fire; but it is desirable, if possible, to save them, by a word in season, from being internally fired up at all. This article is published with that object, and it is hoped it will save many from the bitter experiences which inevitably result from a credulous reliance on "Local Bitters."

The best safeguard against imposition in trade, is a close inspection of the article offered for sale.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Are authenticated by a label ornamented with a fine steel engraving of St. George and the Dragon, a scroll upon which some of the uses of the medicine are described, and a note of hand for one cent, with a fac-simile of the signature of the President of our Company. Also, by a bronze label on the opposite side of the bottle, with directions for use. The name of the medicine (Dr. J. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,) is blown in the bottle, and over the cork is a metallic cap, on which is also impressed the name of the article, together with a medallion head in the centre. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is sold ONLY in bottles (singly or in cases,) and under no circumstances is it ever sold in bulk.

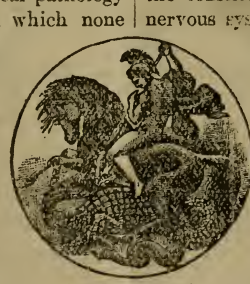
The * Successful * Philosophy * of * Health.

THIS pamphlet is intended for the People. It is not proposed to discuss medical questions in such a way as to involve the minds of readers in a maze of theory and speculation, but to state with clearness the leading causes of certain classes of disorders, and to point out the best method of fortifying the system against their influence, and of restoring the health and strength of the sickly and debilitated. The world has had enough of technical pathology and of medical treatises, which none but the classically educated can understand. When Truth addresses the public, she should do so in the language they speak, not in unknown tongues and mysterious phrases that have no meaning to the general ear. Every man's body is his own. Upon his own good sense is devolved the responsibility of protecting it against the innumerable perils that surround it; and in order to do this intelligently he must understand its weak points, and the nature of the dangers to which it is constantly exposed. Nothing, therefore, but plain and simple English, that he who runs may read, and reading, comprehend, will be found in these pages.



Physical vigor is the main safeguard of health. It repels and fights off the morbid elements which superinduce disease. The grand question, therefore, is, How shall this repellent power be increased where it is but feeble, and acquired where it scarcely exists at all? There was a time when this question could not be satisfactorily answered. But the problem is now solved. It has been proved by the experience of forty years that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters so thoroughly reinforces both the constitution and the secretive and nervous systems, as to render the body comparatively invulnerable to the unwholesome influences which prostrate thousands on beds of sickness, in various parts of the world, at all seasons of the year. It is the only tonic of which the stimulating principle is perfectly pure. The alterative, corrective and restorative properties are derived from medicinal roots and plants often prescribed separately by the profession, but never combined for preventive and remedial purposes, until this hygeian compound was given to the world. It is a standard medicine for complaints of the digestive organs and the liver, and celebrated as a preventive of epidemics generated by malaria and impure water. It is a proved antidote for the prominent disorders described in the following pages.

ECLIPSES FOR THE YEAR 1894.

In the year 1894 there will be FOUR Eclipses—two of the Sun and two of the Moon; and a Transit of Mercury across the Sun's disk:

I.—A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, March 21. Visible more or less to the extreme western portion of North America, Asia, Australia and the Pacific Ocean. Occurring at San Francisco, as follows:

Moon enters Penumbra,	3 h.	48 m.	M.
Moon enters Shadow,	5	16	"
Middle of Eclipse,	6	11	"
Moon leaves Shadow,	7	6	"

Magnitude of Eclipse, = 0.218. (Moon's diameter, = 1.)

II.—An Annular Eclipse of the Sun, April 6. Invisible to America. Visible to eastern Europe, and Asia.

III.—A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, September 14. Visible more or less to North and South America, the western portions of Europe and Africa, and the Atlantic and eastern Pacific Oceans. Occurring at San Francisco, as follows:

Moon enters Penumbra,	5 h.	49 m.	A.
Moon enters Shadow,	7	26	A.
Middle of Eclipse,	8	22	A.
Moon leaves Shadow,	9	18	A.
Moon leaves Penumbra,	10	55	A.

Magnitude of Eclipse, = 0.231. (Moon's diameter, = 1.)

IV.—A Total Eclipse of the Sun, September 29. Invisible to America. Visible to portions of Africa, Hindostan, and Australia, and to the Indian Ocean.

A TRANSIT OF MERCURY, November 10. Visible generally to North and South America, the western portions of Europe and Africa, eastern Australia, and the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. Occurring at San Francisco, as follows: Ingress 7 h. 46 m. M.; Egress 1 h. 3 m. A. Ingress, on the eastern limb of the Sun.

THE

STANDARD TONIC OF CALIFORNIA

AND THE PACIFIC STATES.

Hostetter's · Stomach · Bitters

SURELY the proverb that "Confidence is a plant of slow growth" has been falsified by the progress of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in California. During the many years that have elapsed since the first consignment of this pure and healthful vegetable elixir reached San Francisco, the demand for it has increased with a rapidity rivalling the marvellous growth of the State itself.

The present consumption of the article, in the region lying between the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific, is at least one hundred per cent. larger than that of any other advertised medicinal preparation, and this figure may be doubled for California and Oregon without any danger of exaggeration.

Every new avenue of travel and traffic becomes, as soon as opened, a channel for the dissemination of the standard tonic of the age. The freight trains of the various Pacific Railroads are now distributing immense quantities of it at all points along their widely diverse routes, penetrating wherever civilization finds a foothold. It is safe to say that in every new settlement, outlying village, plantation or camp to which it is conveyed, the diseases incident to the climate and locality, or superinduced by a life of exposure and hardship, lose half their ordinary terrors.

It is scarcely necessary at this late day to tell the miners, farmers and wine growers of California, that for every disorder generated by the exhalations of an unwholesome soil, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be relied on as a swift and unfailing remedy. Most of them have learned this fact from the best of teachers—their own experience. They know also of their own knowledge, that this unequalled invigorant and corrective is an antidote to the invisible poison contained in infected air and impure water, and that it is therefore no less useful as a preservative of health, under adverse circumstances, than as a cure for sickness. Hence, in all parts of the country peculiarly subject to the visitation of periodic fevers, diarrhœa, dysentery, bilious colic, cholera morbus, and other complaints due to local causes, the Bitters are taken habitually, as the surest protection against these distressing and dangerous maladies.

When the community positively knows, by observation and experience, that a certain medicine promotes digestion, revives the appetite, strengthens the nerves, regulates the liver, and acts as a general and thorough tonic, it cares

THE world deals good naturedly with good natured people, and I never knew a sulky misanthropist who quarreled with it, but it was he, not it, that was wrong.—THACKERAY.

A VALUABLE antiseptic soap is made by adding twelve parts of sulphate of copper to eighty parts of any good soap. It will readily heal sores and scratches, and is devoid of any irritating action.

comparatively little about the philosophy of the matter. The convalescent, gathering strength daily under the operation of the Bitters, may, it is true, have some curiosity about the mode in which it acts upon his organization; but as the glow of health returns to his pallid cheek, as his nerves recover their natural elasticity, his pulse its even and vigorous beat, and his mind its relish for enjoyment, he feels that these practical results are a sufficient evidence of the perfect adaptation of the ingredients of the medicine to the end in view, and reposes in it the most implicit confidence.

Indigestion and the disturbances of the liver and bowels are as common in the mining States and territories as on the Atlantic slope, and the fame of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a specific for this class of ailments is as great and as well deserved on one side of the continent as on the other.

THE WORLD'S POPULATION.—According to the estimates of the "Population of the Earth," published by the geographical establishment of the Perthos of Gotha, the total population of the world is 1,480,000,000. The following table gives the area and population of the great divisions of the earth's surface, except a few minor islands, &c., according to the latest data:

	SQUARE MILES.	POPULATION.	TO SQ. MILE.
Europe,	3,756,860	357,379,000	94
Asia,	17,630,686	825,954,000	47
Africa,	11,277,364	169,953,000	14
America,	14,801,402	121,713,000	8
Australia,	2,991,442	3,230,000	1
Oceanic Islands,	733,120	7,420,000	10
Polar Regions,	1,730,810	80,400	...
	52,821,684	1,479,729,400

In Europe, Belgium still exceeds all others in density of population, the proportion being 530 persons to the square mile. Holland holds 365 to the square mile, and the United Kingdom 312. In England the density is nearly 480 to the square mile. The population of China is now about 350,000,000.

THE velocity of sound depends on the elasticity and density of the medium; the elasticity acts like a spring between the molecules of the medium; the greater the density the slower the motion, because there are more molecules to be set in motion, and hence more time is required. Warm air is rarer than cold air, hence sound travels more rapidly in warm air than in cold. At the freezing point sound waves travel 1,090 feet per second. A change of one degree varies the velocity about one foot per second.

BY the rules of war it is death to stop a cannon ball.

WINTER.

The dead leaves strew the forest walk,
And withered are the pale wild flowers;
The frost hangs blackening on the stalk,
And dewdrops fall in frozen showers;
Gone are the spring's green sprouting bowers
Gone, summer's rich and mantling vines;
And autumn, with her yellow hours,
On hill and plain no longer shines.

THEIR ready wit has often saved men's lives, but we question if it was ever more cleverly called into play than in the following instance: Four soldiers of the Emperor Joseph II. having been convicted of the crime of desertion, were condemned to throw dice to determine which of them should be executed. Three of them made no objection, but the fourth refused. Asked his reason, he replied, "It is against the emperor's own orders. He has strictly forbidden his soldiers to play at any game of chance." The emperor, having been informed of the man's quaint excuse at so critical a moment, instantly ordered that he as well as his companions should be pardoned.

A HOUSEKEEPER, the mother of eight children, was suddenly seized with insanity and confined in an asylum. The husband, when asked as to the cause of her insanity, said he could conceive of no possible reason. "She was a devoted mother, was always doing something for us, was always at home, never went out of the house even on Sundays, or gadding about to the neighbors, gossiping and talking; she was the best of wives; had no ideas outside of her home." "The husband," said the superintendent of the asylum, "has furnished a graphic list of the causes of his wife's insanity."

THE English traveler who complained that that there were no ruins in America, evidently had not studied American politics.

A POET says that a baby is "a new wave on the ocean of life." It strikes us that a "fresh squall" would express the idea better.

AN UNNECESSARY DEMONSTRATION.

TOURIST.—"Don't trouble yourself, my friend; allow me to hand it to you."

From ISAAC A. HARVEY, Beech Creek, Pa., August 21, 1891:

In March, 1889, I became very sick in Sonora, Mexico, and for two years suffered intensely with chills, debility, &c. I was not relieved by physicians or any remedy suggested until I began the use of your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which helped me at once. It is necessary for me to have the Bitters with me during my geological work, owing to chronic weakness and congestion caused by my Mexican experience.

My father used the Bitters for many years, having been a bad dyspeptic, and a successful physician for twenty-five years.

MEDICAL PROVERBS.

GERMAN.—A physician is an angel when employed, but a devil when you must pay him....Dear physic always does good....A disobedient patient makes an unfeeling physician.

SPANISH.—What cures Sancho makes Martha sick....The earth hides as it takes, the physician's mistakes....He that sits with his back to a draft, sits with his face to a coffin. ...Of the malady a man fears, he dies....He that would be healthy must wear his winter clothes in summer.

ENGLISH.—Diseases are a tax upon our pleasures....A good surgeon must have an eagle's eye, a lion's heart and a lady's hand. ...Tender surgeons make foul wounds.

FRENCH.—A physician is a man who pours drugs, of which he knows little, into a body of which he knows less.

From FRANK B. MEYER, Rensselaer, Ind., Sept. 17, 1891:

Your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters sells better than ever. Many persons using it that had la grippe.

WHAT does it matter if we lose a few minutes in a whole day? Answer: Time table (days in a year, 313; working hours in a day, 8). Five minutes lost each day is in a year 3 days, 2 hours, 5 minutes; ten minutes is 6 days, 4 hours, 10 minutes; twenty is 13 days and 20 minutes; thirty is 19 days, 4 hours, 30 minutes; 60 minutes is 39 days, 1 hour.

A LITTLE fellow, when his father was instructing him about the deluge, said, "Eh, father, isn't it a pity that the devil wasn't drowned at the flood!"

Malaria, * Fever * and * Ague, * &c.

IF a physician were questioned as to the best method of avoiding these maladies, he would probably reply: "Shun swamps, new clearings and alluvial soils, and sojourn only where the air is pure and the water unexceptionable." Good advice, doubtless, if it could be universally followed; but not worth much, in view of the fact that where our interests are, there, as a general rule, must our bodies be also. Some of us must live in swampy districts, others on the unhealthy borders of turbid rivers, others on lands reeking at certain seasons with the fumes of decaying vegetation, many under a tropical sun, and a large majority of the human family in regions where the atmospheric conditions are unfavorable to health and life. But are the fevers provoked by miasma immedicable, or even difficult to be controlled? Certainly not. There is no form of intermittent which Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will not bring into subjection within a fortnight, and thoroughly cure within a reasonable time. This is the experience of whole communities in the South and West. In remittent fever it is equally efficacious—shortening the paroxysms, to begin with, then breaking them up, and eventually stopping them altogether. What a blessed exchange for the most nauseous preparation that ever revolted the human palate, (and which, at best, only suspended the complaint for which it was prescribed,) has been substituted this potent elixir, that never disappoints the sufferer.

Bear in mind, however, in this connection, that it is optional with the inhabitants of miasmatic districts whether they have fever and ague or no. Neither that nor any other disease, periodic or otherwise, the seeds of which are sown by the air, or imbibed with any variety or quality of water, is likely to prostrate the man or woman whose stomach, liver and nervous system are vitalized, strengthened and toned by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

CISTERNS.—If cisterns are cylindrical their contents can be readily determined by the following rule Multiply the square of the radius (one-half of the diameter) by 3.14159, and this product by the depth, all dimensions to be in inches. Then divide by 231, and you have the number of gallons, since the gallon contains 231 cubic inches.

GAUGING.—To find the contents of a barrel or cask, multiply the square of the diameter by the length of the barrel (all in inches), divide this product by 29.5, and point off one figure to the right; the result will be the answer in wine gallons. It may be necessary to add, that to find the mean diameter, we add together the greatest and least diameters, and divide by 2.

TO TREAT POISONOUS BITES.—Put a ligature above it to prevent a return flow of blood, then scrape the wound, or otherwise keep it open, so that the blood will flow freely. This prevents the veins from carrying the poison into the system, and at the same time the free flow of blood tends to wash the poison out. It is a general rule that the more freely a wound bleeds the less danger there is of poison being absorbed.

THERE are certain times in the lives of all human beings when they are sick and weary of the society of their fellow mortals; but we question if there is a single human being who can appreciate solitude like the youth who has secretly purloined his father's razor in order to shave himself for the first time.

If you your lips would keep from slips,
Five things observe with care:
Of whom you speak, to whom you speak,
And how, and when, and where.

The Bitters as a Season Medicine.

AS the seasons change, corresponding changes occur in the state of the atmosphere, and the body should be put in a condition to meet them. The best tonic and alterative that can be taken for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and a short course of the medicine at the commencement of the spring, summer, fall and winter months, will be found eminently useful in warding off the ailments which arise from a sudden increase of heat or cold, or in the humidity or dryness of the air. Travelers and emigrants regard the Bitters as an excellent acclimating preparation; and it is no less valuable as an antidote to the bodily derangements and disturbances which are produced by a change of season, than for those caused by a new climate.

In fact, at all times, in every season, want of tone in the stomach and liver produces dyspepsia and biliousness, and the nerves and brain, sympathizing with the disordered organs, lose their vigor and elasticity, and become terribly depressed.

The best remedy, in cases of this kind, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and for the sufficient reason that it acts beneficially upon the sources of sensation and thought, as well as upon the digestive, assimilative and secretive machinery, and thus medicines both body and mind.

'Tis weary watching wave by wave,
But still the tide sweeps onward;
We build like corals, grave by grave,
A path which stretches sunward;
We're beaten back in many a fray,
While fighting sin and sorrow,
But where the vanguard fights to-day,
Our rear guard camps to-morrow.

FRIENDS and enemies are many-sided, and while we may correctly see parts of their character, other parts are veiled from us. Every one has his virtues and vices, his excellencies and shortcomings, and while much we see in him may be actually there, there is much more of which we never dream.

THE VALUE OF TIME.—Many do not appreciate the precious and priceless endowment of time. That was a sentiment worthy of immortality penned by the military scientist, Gen. Mitchell, when he said to his military staff, "Gentlemen, astronomy has taught me to put great value on the millionth part of a second." It was Horace Mann who formulated the sad advertisement, "Lost, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes."

MAYONNAISE DRESSING.—Put the yolks of two eggs in a deep dish, with a little salt and white pepper, into these stir briskly some olive oil, which must be added very gradually, and alternated every little while with a few spoonfuls of vinegar. This dressing should have an agreeable flavor, and a rather stiff consistency.

OLD putty can be removed without injury to the sash or glass, by passing a hot soldering iron over it. The heat of the iron softens it readily, and permits its removal with a knife or chisel without much trouble.

THE weight of cattle can, of course, only be told exactly by the scales; but a reasonable approximation may be reached by the girth, measuring a short distance back of the fore legs. A girth of five feet indicates a weight of 650 to 750 pounds, according to form and fatness; adding 25 pounds for each additional inch of girth measure, until six feet is reached, and fifty pounds for each additional inch over six feet.

God sends his singers upon earth,
With songs of sadness and of mirth;
That they might touch the hearts of men,
And bring them back to heaven again.

ALL THE COMFORTS OF A COUNTRY HOME.

FARMER HOST.—"Ain't your face changed some since last night? I don't remember those whiskers."

SHIVERING GUEST.—"My friend, I've just washed. That's an icicle!"

From JACOB KOEHER, South Wilkesbarre, Pa., February 5, 1891:

I take pleasure in recommending Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for dyspepsia, I suffered twenty years with it, and thought I must die, as I had doctored with about all the physicians in my city, and found no relief until I tried your Bitters; after taking nine bottles found myself a well man. I am about seventy years of age, and well and hearty, and can thank Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for the same.

SIR HENRY THOMPSON, the eminent English authority on food matters, calls the raw tomato the "prince of salads." He also deems the tomato valuable, "not so much for nutritive properties as for the salts it contains; in almost any condition, simple cookery alone is admissible for it. Doubtless, if ripe and fresh, it is best of all when eaten raw; but, if served hot, only plain boiling, baking or broiling will cook this delicious half-fruit, half-vegetable so as least to alter or diminish its natural flavor.

From MRS. L. M. HINGLE, Whitesville, N.J., January 15, 1892:

We all had la grippe, people dying all around us. We had no doctor, and had to go twenty miles to get Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. We cured ourselves and others with it.

THE white of an egg, with a little water and sugar, is good for children who are troubled with an irritable stomach. It is very healing, and will prove an excellent remedy for diarrhœa, as well as a simple preventive for bowel disorders.

Strength for the Feeble.

IT is not claimed that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will render a slight and fragile frame absolutely robust and athletic; but it is nevertheless certain that the regular use of the article will increase the active force of a weak and languid system. Debility, whether it be constitutional or casual, is unquestionably a great misfortune. Nothing can be more mortifying and depressing to a man or woman of an ambitious turn, than a lack of the necessary physical strength to carry out the objects they have in view. It is obvious, therefore, that a genuine tonic, capable of imparting unwonted elasticity and vigor to organizations in which these qualities are wanting, must be of immense importance in a world where, in the words of the old proverb, "the weakest always go the wall." The fact that this desirable change is brought about by the Bitters, rests upon the most incontrovertible evidence. Thousands of both sexes, who have felt and still feel the renovating effects of the great invigorant, are willing to testify to its virtues in this regard.

Convalescents, slowly recovering from acute attacks of disease; the naturally frail and delicate; persons who have overtaxed their strength by excessive labor; the young and the thoughtless, who are suffering from the reaction consequent on a wild pursuit of pleasure; the infirm, upon whom Time has laid a heavy hand, and indeed, all who suffer from a deficiency of vital power and physical capability, will find the Bitters a helping and strengthening elixir, thoroughly adapted to their needs.

God respects not the arithmetic of our prayers, how many they are; nor the rhetoric of our prayers, how long they are; nor the music of our prayers, how melodious they are; nor the logic of our prayers, how methodical they are—but the divinity of our prayers, how heart-sprung they are. Not gifts, but graces, prevail in prayer.

An inventor has evolved a new trap, in one end of which is a mirror. "This may do for the female rats," says an editor noted for his convivial habits, "but when a male rat notices that the bait looks double, he will think he has had enough and go home."

Remedy for Earache.—There is scarcely any ache to which children are subject so hard to bear and difficult to cure as earache. But there is a remedy never known to fail. Take a bit of cotton batting, put upon it a pinch of black pepper, gather it up and tie it, dip in sweet oil and insert into the ear. Put a flannel bandage over the head to keep it warm. It will give immediate relief.

The inventor of the game of chess, on being promised by the king, whom he first taught the game, that he should have any reward he might ask for, meekly replied that he would be content if the king would give him one kernel of wheat on the first square, two on the second, and so on, doubling up to the sixty-fourth square. The king gladly acceded to this seemingly modest request, and ordered his attendants to bring in the wheat, which they began to do; but, to the astonishment of the monarch, it was found that there was not wheat enough in the whole dominion to pay off the crafty inventor. It would require 9,627,268,786,931-775,163 kernels, equivalent to 30,027,097,184,-485 bushels.

Polish for Old Furniture.—Alcohol one-half pint, shellac and rosin each one-fourth ounce; after these have dissolved in the alcohol, add one-half pint linseed oil; shake well. Apply with a sponge or brush, or canton flannel, rubbing it well after the application, which gives a nice polish.

REST is as important as work. Bend a sapling, and it will fly back when released; but keep it bent a week, and it will not resume its former shape. So with the hard working man, who takes too little time to rest.

A NEW DEPARTURE IN HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS.

MRS. REGINALD (and daughters).—"Father! What in the world are you doing?"

MR. REGINALD.—"I'm changing these mottos, that's all. Another season and I'm ruined."

From J. HARVEY HUTCHINGS, Bancroft, Mich., March 14, 1891:

I have sold Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for a number of years, and believe it gives general satisfaction. Always like to recommend it.

PLEASURE is as legitimate as prayer; it has in its place as great a function in life; it is in its way as necessary to true growth and development. It is a duty to command time for pleasure as it is a duty to command time for prayer; and the prayer is a fuller expression of man, if pleasure as well as pain has had an influence on it.

GOOD DISINFECTANT.—Great need is often felt of a good, reliable disinfectant, in such quantities that the amount of the purchase money precludes its use. An ounce of permanganate of potash, which may be obtained of any druggist, will make a bucketful of as good a deodorizer and disinfectant as can be obtained. It only needs to be dissolved in water, and it can be kept in crystals until it be needed.

From T. G. TOOMBS, La Grange, Tenn., May 5, 1891:

I have kept the old standby, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in stock since August, 1836. Whilst Log Cabin, Plantation, Drake's, Vinegar and a host of others have passed out, Hostetter's retain the same standard in quality as well as material.

CARBOLIC ACID IN RHEUMATISM.—In the form of a four per cent. solution, applied warm on a piece of flannel wrung out and well covering the affected parts, applied at night and allowed to remain until morning, it is said to give relief in many instances.

Guard * against * Sleeplessness.

GREAT activity of brain is one of the characteristics of American human nature. If it were otherwise, we should not be the wonderfully progressive people that we are admitted to be by the slower nations of Europe. But this intellectual activity has its penalties, and one of them is insomnia, or an indisposition to sleep. We are called a "wide-awake" community, and the saying is literally, as well as figuratively correct. Business projects, and short cuts to fame and wealth, occupy our minds o' nights, when we ought to be in the arms of Somnus. To cure this wakefulness a healthful sedative is needed, and as the tranquillizing properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are as remarkable as their invigorating tendency, they may be safely pronounced a specific for this harrassing and enervating condition. A wineglassful, taken at bed time, will usually procure for the most restless brain a night of sound and refreshing repose. Moreover, the anodyne influence of the preparation is not derived from any strong narcotic drug, but from the combination of soothing and toning ingredients, in such happy proportion as to have a lulling and quieting effect upon the sensorium. Hence, there can be no reaction like that which follows the primary operation of morphine and other opiates, dangerous to health.

GLUE AS A CURE FOR CUTS.—A correspondent of the Scientific American writes as follows: For the last twelve or fourteen years I have been employed in a shop where are over three hundred men at work, and as is the case in all shops of this kind, hardly a day passes without one or more of us cut or bruise our limbs. At first there were but few found their way to my department to have their wounds bound up, but after awhile it became generally known that a rag glued on a flesh wound was not only a speedy curative, but an effectual protection against further injury.

POISONS.—When a poison has been swallowed, send immediately for a physician, and in the meantime give a tablespoonful of ground mustard in a tumblerful of warm water, followed by more warm water, until vomiting occurs. If there is no mustard, common salt will answer. If an alkali like washing soda is taken, give vinegar and water, and follow in a short time with an emetic.

DEATH is a wonderful mimic. He can take anybody off.

FROM THE ARABIC.

None have I taught to bend the bow,
And set the swift shaft free,
Who have not, at the last, for thanks,
Their arrows aimed at me.

THE BEST TIME TO PAINT.—Paint spread on in the fall or winter will last twice as long as that put on in spring or summer. When applied in cold weather it dries slowly and forms a hard surface or crust, while that which is spread in the hot weather loses most of the oil by its being driven into the wood by the heat, leaving only a dry lead on the surface, which easily crumbles off. Another advantage is gained by fall or winter painting, and that is the absence of small flies that so often collect on the paint.

SWELLED FEET AND ANKLES.—Take plantain leaves, and wilt them by putting them separately between the hands; cover the swollen parts with them, and keep them in place by wrapping the limb with rags or a towel on going to bed at night, or keep them on during the day, if not obliged to be upon the feet. A cure will be speedily effected.

No man can tell whether he is rich or poor by turning to his ledger. It is the heart that makes a man rich. He is rich according to what he is, not according to what he has.

Losing * and * Gaining * Flesh.

FLESH is manufactured blood. If the blood is thin and watery, the flesh of the body will be scant in quantity, or flabby in texture, or both. To arrest emaciation, enrich the blood with a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. One of the effects of the preparation is to render the blood more nutritive, and, as a consequence, more capable of developing healthy flesh. If the digestion is imperfect, the stream of life must necessarily be deficient in nourishing elements. In that case meagreness is the result. But the stomach only needs to be toned with the Bitters in order to enable it to extract from the food taken into it all the nourishment which the body requires. Nor is this the only way in which the famous restorative assists in clothing the bones of the attenuated with solid fibre. It contains ingredients which have a direct tendency to purify the vital fluid, and thereby increase its productive power.

Let the emaciated, who wish to round off the angles of their bodies, and give themselves what the physiologists call a "well-nourished" appearance, resort to this unequalled appetizer, tonic and blood depurent. It is much better for leanness than cod liver oil, besides having none of the nauseating taste and smell of that abominable remedy.

In warm weather, when the loss of flesh by perspiration is very considerable, a dose or two of the Bitters should be taken daily, in order to make up for the unusual drain. It should be remembered that strength, as well as substance, evaporates under a high temperature, and that physical vigor is recruited by the use of this medicine of many virtues.

TEXAS WIT.—Sam O——, of San Antonio, was a passenger on the San Saba stage that was robbed a short time since. "Shell out your money or off goes the top of your head," remarked one of the robbers, holding a pistol under Sam's nose. "Three hundred dollars vash all I got, so help me schiminy grashus." "Hand 'em over." He did so, keeping back six dollars. "What are you keeping them six dollars for?" mildly inquired the robber, pressing a pistol against Sam's head. "Mine Gott, don't you let a man take out two per cent. ven he advances money.

WHERE screws are driven into soft wood, and subjected to considerable strain, they are likely to work loose. In such cases the use of glue is recommended. Prepare the glue thick; immerse a stick about half the size of the screw, and put it into the hole; then immerse the screw and turn it home as quickly as possible.

KEEPING the head perfectly clean is a great aid to health. A distinguished physician, who has spent much of his time at quarantine, said that a person whose head was thoroughly washed every day, rarely ever took contagious diseases, but when the hair was allowed to become dirty and matted, it was hardly possible to escape infection. Many persons find speedy relief for nervous headache by washing the head thoroughly in weak soda water. We have known cases almost wholly cured in ten minutes by this simple remedy.

IT happened once that a faithful Moslem married, but when he saw his wife she proved to be very unprepossessing. Some days after the marriage his wife said to him, "My dove, as you have many relatives, I wish you would let me know before whom I may unveil." "My gazelle," he replied, "if thou wilt only hide thy face from me, I care not to whom thou showest it."

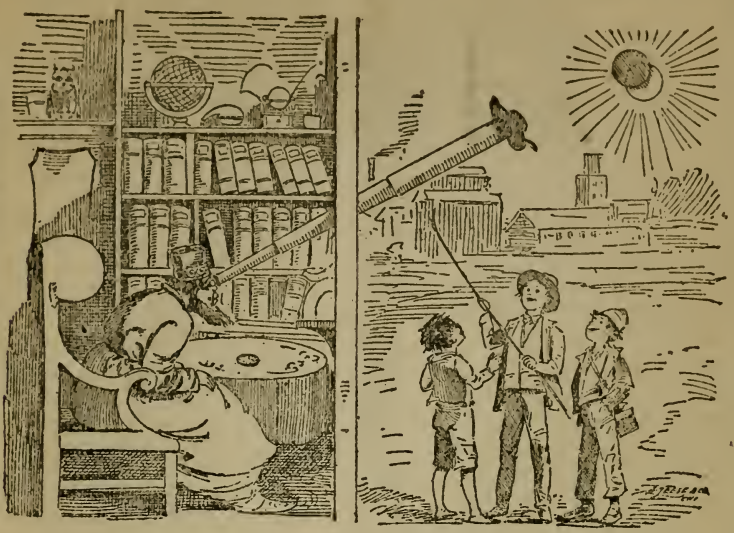
MORAL PRINCIPLE.—A man that puts himself on the ground of moral principle, if the whole world be against him, is mightier than all of them. A man ought not to fear being in minorities, so that minorities are based upon principles.—BEECHER.



A PREMATURE OBSCURATION.

"The Eclipse will be total," the old Astronomer said, "at 12 h. 21 m. 18 s. Now we'll see if my telescope isn't the best in the world."

"How's that for a telescope?" he said, "it's ten minutes thirty-one seconds ahead of the official instruments on that there eclipse, boil me if it ain't!"

NOVEMBER'S wailing winds awake
The forest's silence deep;
The summer birds long since have fled,
The wild flowers are asleep.
On leafless twigs the rose hips glow,
Blood red above the drifted snow.

Yet here and there, on bare brown boughs,
Fair yellow blooms arise;
Sisters of mercy in whose hand
The gift of healing lies;
Witch hazel opes her flowrets pale,
To meet the wild November gale.

From E. V. SHARP, Coushatta, La., July 25, 1891:

I have handled your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters constantly while merchandizing, and had the best success. It is no doubt the best in the market for all malarial troubles.

A GLUE to resist heat and moisture is made by mixing a handful of quicklime in four ounces of linseed oil, boil till thick, spread on thin plates in the shade, from which plates it may be removed after it becomes hard. It can be used as ordinary glue by dissolving over the fire. A glue to resist the action of water is made by boiling ordinary glue with two quarts of skim milk.

From H. C. YETTER, Galesburg, Ills., May 4, 1891:

We sell your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to our very best trade. Preachers, lawyers, doctors, professional men, in every walk of life; high, low, rich and poor; in fact to everybody wanting a first class meritorious medicine. It has no equal on earth as a genuine Bitters.

TO REMOVE PAINT FROM CLOTH.—Use carbolic acid, applying with a piece of sponge or cloth, and it will remove paint even if dried on. For dark cloth the ordinary acid can be employed, but on lighter goods only the purified. All trace of the acid can afterwards be removed by the use of soap and water, applying with flannel.

Nervous Complaints.

THE Brain is the source of the nervous system; but even the brain is powerfully influenced by the stomach. If that master organ—by which all the other organs are recruited and sustained—is derelict in its duty, every portion of the body languishes; for the stomach supplies, so to speak, the raw material of flesh, bone, sinew, muscle, nerve, and every other component, solid or fluid, of the physical frame.

Nervous complaints may therefore be the immediate result of a disordered stomach, and they often are. In other cases they arise more remotely from the same cause; but, however this may be, we know that the great sympathetic nerve, the main channel of sensation, is invariably affected by whatever affects the digestive apparatus.

It is seldom of much use in nervous affections to apply external remedies. The whole system must be toned, and a new impulse given to the circulation, in order to effect a cure. Among all the medicines that have yet been given to the world for this purpose, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may fairly be pronounced the most successful. Remedies, like trees, are known by their fruits, and the fruits of administering this powerful and thorough vegetable invigorant in nervous cases, have been all that could be desired.

A constitutional tendency to nervousness exists in many systems, and wherever it does exist it should be controlled by a healthful stomachic and nervine. Two small doses of the Bitters, taken daily, one at noon and the other at bedtime, will keep the most susceptible nerves in a quiet, natural condition, and prove an excellent safeguard against tremors, spasms, neuralgic pains, nervous headache, paralysis, numbness of the extremities, and other complaints, which are among the common affections of the weak and sensitive. It should be constantly borne in mind that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are a preventive of all the diseases for which they are recommended as an eradicant.

CREOSOTE AS A TIMBER PRESERVATIVE.—An ordinary uncreosoted telegraph pole, according to Mr. W. Preece, of the British post office, lasts about seven years, whereas creosoted poles have continued sound after thirty-five years of service. The life of uncreosoted sleepers on the Great Western Railway has been found to be five years; that of creosoted sleepers at least eight or ten years, and often double that time. The cost of creosoting does not exceed 25 per cent. of the original value of the timber.

A GOOD recipe for making water proof cement, to be used in constructing aquariums, is to take 26 parts gutta percha in shreds, and melt it carefully. Add 75 parts ground pumice stone, and then mix in 450 parts Burgundy pitch, and then melt well together.

BOUNDLESS MERCY.

I think heaven will not shut forevermore,
Without a knocker left upon the door,
Lest some belated wanderer should come,
Heartbroken, asking just to die at home;
So that the Father will at last forgive,
And looking on his face, that soul shall live.

A MINISTER was once asked how it was that he consented to the marriage of his daughter to a Presbyterian. "Well," he replied, "as far as I have been able to discover, Cupid never studied theology."

HOP TEA.—A large spoonful of hops, simmer in a pint of water. When strong enough, strain off and add white sugar. A quieting drink, excellent for nervous headache.

A Medicine for Emergencies.

IT is handy to have Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in the house; nay more, it betokens a signal want of prudence and foresight to be without it. Suppose a stimulant is needed, (and no sensible person questions the utility of stimulants in certain cases) is it not better to give a pure, wholesome article, scientifically medicated, free from every deleterious adulteration? Suppose the lady of the house has fainted, or one of the children has had a fit, or the head of the household been prostrated by a sunstroke, or some member of the family has been attacked with vertigo, or violent headache, or bilious colic, or cholera morbus, or the premonitory symptoms of chills and fever, is there anything that will afford relief as promptly and certainly as this toning and vitalizing agent? In the whole catalogue of remedies applicable to such emergencies, its equal cannot be found. It is at once a stimulant and an internal balsam—it revives and soothes at the same time. Send for a physician, if you will, but in nine instances out of ten his services will be unnecessary, if this elixir is administered while the messenger is in search of him. He will find on his arrival that the restorative has left nothing for him to do, except to congratulate the convalescent. In sparsely settled districts, where medical aid cannot readily be obtained, the usual family resource, in cases of sudden sickness, is a dose of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and there is good warrant for saying that it never disappoints those who use it. There can be no presumption, therefore, in calling it an invaluable household medicine.

A CURIOUS method of testing the freshness of eggs is mentioned by Dr. D. G. Evans. He has observed that when a perfectly fresh egg is placed to the ear and violently agitated, no sound is noted; but, if the egg is stale, a knocking sound is heard, as if the contents were not sufficient to fill the shell. The staler the egg the greater is the oscillation and the sound generated. He says the test is an infallible one.

THERE is a grim humor about some of Judge Lynch's executions. A bank president in Southwestern Texas made away with all the funds under his charge, and then posted on the door of his institution, "Bank suspended." That night he was interviewed by a number of depositors, who left him hanging to a tree, with this notice pinned to his breast: "Bank president suspended."

A CONSTITUTIONAL JUDGE.—Judge C——, a distinguished lawyer in Mississippi, got drunk and went to bed with his clothes and boots on. A friend roused him up and told him that he was making a beast of himself, and that it was a great shame for a man of his ability to act in that manner. "Get up, Judge," said he, "and at least pull your muddy boots off." To which the Judge replied: "I always knew you were not a good democrat. You don't understand the first principles of true democracy." "Explain yourself," said his friend. "Well," said the Judge, "the first principle of true democracy is opposition to the exercise of doubtful powers."

DR. LAWRENCE was in a cemetery at Plymouth the other day, when he saw an old man weeping over a tomb stone. "Have you lost a dear relative?" he asked with sympathy. "No," said the man, pointing to the inscription that said, "Here lies a lawyer and an honest man," "but I was wondering how they came to lay two poor fellows in one grave."

Rheumatic * and * Neuralgic * Tortures.

THE source of rheumatism is in dispute; but the best medical authorities ascribe the disease to the presence of a peculiar acrid matter in the blood. What this matter is has not been made apparent, and probably never will be. Some physicians say it is an acid, and on the theory that "like cures like," prescribe lemon juice, while others administer alkalies; but neither mode of treatment seems to meet with much success. Meanwhile, the most potent of vegetable tonics and detergents—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters—is curing all the varieties of this tormenting complaint. Doctors may disagree about its origin, but their professional pros and cons are of small consequence, if a remedy for the disease has actually been found. All that the sufferers have to say upon the subject is, that the medicine gives them ease. They do not know how this object is effected, nor do they particularly care; but they believe in the specific which relieves their agony.

It has never been claimed that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters ought to rank as a catholicon, or universal curative. Such a phenomenon does not exist, although ignorance and pretension may insist in print that they have discovered it. It is claimed, however, on the authority of a large mass of the right kind of testimony, that as a cure for rheumatism and neuralgia, as well as for dyspeptic, bilious and nervous troubles, this celebrated remedy deserves the confidence of a discriminating public. Rheumatic sufferers are advised to give it a trial, instead of ruining their health and constitutions with colchicum and other dangerous drugs, which are rather more apt to destroy the patient than to remove the disease.

PNEUMONIA can be cured if the person will apply promptly over the lungs a poultice or draft made of mustard and flaxseed meal, keeping quiet and warm in bed. Prompt action is of vital importance, and there is no occasion for waiting the arrival of an "old fashioned" or "new fashioned" practitioner, when so simple a remedy may be applied by any one, and if taken in season, will always be effective. Mustard is an old fashioned cure, and its healing virtues can hardly be over estimated.

A MODEL HOUSEWIFE.—"I tell you, sir, the most admirable housekeeper that ever lived was my mother-in-law." "And she is no longer living?" "Alas, no! eaten by the cannibals of Africa." "You don't mean it?" "It was even so. When the cannibals had thrust her into the cauldron, and she was beginning to cook, she cried out faintly with her last words, 'Don't forget the salt and pepper!'"

AN ILLUSTRATION.—Mr. Spurgeon uses a homely illustration, which is at once a rebuke to one class and an admonition to another: "When a dog is not noticed he doesn't like it; but when the dog is after a fox, he doesn't care whether he is noticed or not. If a minister is seeking for souls he will not think of himself."

CLOTHING ON FIRE.—Immediately throw a rug, a piece of carpet, a coat, or anything woolen, over the victim, so as to smother the flames, and do not allow him to run away from you. In removing the clothes be careful not to pull off the skin; and, if only slightly burned, apply lime water and linseed oil. If at all severe, send for a physician.

"WHY," said the husband, "do you put the hair of another woman on your head?" "Why," retorted his better-half, "do you wear the skin of another calf on your hands?"

Derangements of the Stomach.

A HEALTHY Stomach forms a very essential part of the animal economy. It ought, therefore, to be tenderly treated, but this is not the case; on the contrary, it is continually outraged in every imaginable way, and when disordered by ill usage, is not unfrequently made worse by injudicious medication

To protest against the violations of the laws of health, which are the ordinary causes of indigestion, would perhaps be useless; but the eagerness with which sufferers from acute and chronic dyspepsia resort to the only preparation which invariably cures those diseases, is a proof that mankind, when assailed by pain, generally adopt the surest means of getting rid of it. Difficult as it is to persuade men to refrain from indigestible food and deleterious drink, and to eat moderately and slowly at regular intervals, there is no difficulty in inducing them to take Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a remedy, when their imprudences begin to tell upon the stomach, the liver and the nervous system.

The "all gone" sensation in the diaphragm—that feeling of emptiness and exhaustion of which dyspeptics invariably complain—may be removed whenever it occurs, by a single dose of the Bitters, and the still more unpleasant oppression after eating, which has been likened to the pressure of a lump of lead at the pit of the stomach, can be relieved immediately by the same means. Nausea, heart-burn, sick headache and great depression of spirits, which are among the usual concomitants of indigestion, disappear, as soon as the tonic principle of the remedy has had time to operate upon the assimilating organs.

HINTS FOR POOR SLEEPERS.—Poor sleepers will find it advantageous often to raise the head of the bed a foot higher than the foot, and then to sleep on a tolerably thick hair pillow, so as to bring the head a little higher than the shoulders. The object is to make the work of the heart in throwing the blood to the brain harder, so it will not throw so much. A level bed, with the head almost as low as the feet, causes an easy flow of blood to the brain, and prevents sleep.

THE greater longevity of women, as compared with that of men, appears to be well borne out by the statistics of every country that have yet been examined. This shows that after all it is not silk dresses, heavy skirts and thin shoes that kill. It is paying for them.

THERE is more benefit in a good laugh (says a writer on health) than all the hot water remedies, faith cures, cold water, electric, and all new-fangled treatments in the world, and it does not cost anything. Laugh. If you know nothing else to laugh at, laugh at your neighbor. He is probably improving his health by laughing at you.

ONIONS FOR SLEEPLESSNESS. — Persons troubled with a want of sleep would do well to eat a raw onion or two before retiring. Everybody knows the taste of onions; thisis due to a peculiar essential oil contained in this most valuable and healthy root. This oil possesses soporific powers. If you are pressed with work, and feel you shall not sleep, eat two or three small onions, and the effect is magical. Onions are also excellent things to eat when exposed to intense cold.

FOR a damp closet or cupboard, which is liable to cause mildew, place in it a saucer full of quicklime, and it will not only absorb all apparent dampness, but sweeten and disinfect the place. Renew the lime once a fortnight, or as often as it becomes slacked.

"COMING EVENTS CAST THEIR SHADOW BEFORE."

"Richard Cromwell, go your way. Anna and I have plighted our vows, and we are to be married in twenty years."

"Baffled again, and by him," muttered Cromwell, standing as one transfixed, and with a look of hate upon his brow.

At a meeting of railway stockholders a plan is proposed for the prevention of accident—an expensive plan. "How many passengers do we kill a year?" asks a shareholder. So many. "And what do the damages average?" So much. "Gentlemen, a minute's work with paper and pencil will show you that collisions are fifty per cent. cheaper.

From R. H. Hutchason, M. D., Hamilton, Ind., May 12, 1891:

I will say that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters gives entire satisfaction, and I prescribe it daily. Could not do without it.

Adversity is sometimes hard upon a man, but for one man who can stand prosperity there are a hundred that will stand adversity.

From F. J. Lebangood, M. D., Middlesborough, Ky., July 8, 1891:

Your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters sells well, and I use it frequently in my practice.

What to do for a Burn.—When the flesh gets a bad burn, many of the pain-killers are good, but some people have never found anything like the white of a raw egg. If the egg is broken over the burned spot, the white shuts out the air, and quickly soothes away the pain.

From D. W. Hyde, Pittsfield, Ill., May 8, 1891:

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is used solely for medicinal purposes, and is the only Bitters among us that retains the confidence of the public as to its medicinal properties and purity.

It was an old New England judge who once interrupted a lawyer in the midst of a spread-eagle speech by saying: "Mr. ——, I wish you would take a few feathers from the wings of your imagination, and put them in the tail of your judgment."

The * Functions * of * the * Bowels.

THE Bowels are the waste pipes of the body, and carry off the refuse which remains after the digestible portion of the food has been utilized. But this is not all; they also assist in the process of digestion, and may therefore be considered, in one sense, a continuation of the stomach. Certain elements of nutrition, which are not fully acted upon by that organ, are converted to the purposes of life, in the upper intestines, by the animal fluids which flow into those channels. The bile is one of these fluids, and the alimentary canal itself exudes another—both assisting in the chemical operation by which meat and drink are changed into blood. The lining of this canal is thickly set with small vessels, all of which are incessantly employed in purveying sustenance to the frame. The pithless rubbish, whence all nourishment has been drained, is discharged through the lower intestines.

Upon this intricate machinery, when out of order, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters exercises a special and most beneficial influence. If the fæcal matter, which should pass out of the bowels at regular periods, accumulates and remains in the passages an undue length of time, the aperient action of the medicine relieves them of their burden, without pain or difficulty, and completely restores the punctuality of those organs. The worst cases of chronic constipation can thus be radically cured in a very short space of time. On the other hand, if the bowels are weak and relaxed, and the evacuations frequent and unnatural, the invigorating and energizing effect of the preparation will soon remedy the evil. It should be given in the early stages of diarrhœa and dysentery, before they have assumed a chronic type. Most diseases of the bowels arise from a want of tone and vigor in the membrane which lines them, and as this celebrated herbal restorative is a specific for local weakness and inertia, it is admirably adapted to the cure of the complaints referred to CONSUMPTION OF AIR IN ACTIVITY AND REPOSE.—Dr. Radclyff Hall makes the following interesting statement with regard to the amount of air we consume in repose, and at different degrees of activity. When still we use 500 cubic inches of air in a minute; if we walk at the rate of one mile an hour, we use 800; two miles an hour, 1,000; three miles an hour, 1,600; four miles an hour, 2,300. If we run at six miles an hour, we use 3,000; trotting a horse, 1,750; cantering, 1,500.

MRS. ROHRER'S recipe for "Hamburg Cream" proves so delicious on trial, and is, withal, so easy to make, that we are sure our housekeeping readers will be glad to know it. Beat together the juice of two lemons, one-half pound of sifted sugar, and the yolks of five eggs. Put on the fire in a double boiler, and let it come to a boil. Add quickly the whites of the eggs, beaten stiff. Stir all well together, take immediately from the fire, and serve cold in glasses or in large dessert dishes.

FOR enamel for shirt bosoms melt together with a gentle heat, one ounce white wax and two ounces spermaceti; prepare in the usual way a sufficient quantity of starch for a dozen bosoms, put into it a piece of this enamel the size of a hazel nut. This gives a beautiful polish.

THE difference between a long and a short yarn is very well illustrated by the difference of one's feelings in holding a skein for one's grandmother and one's sweetheart.

The Penalty of Kidney Diseases.

ALL diseases which affect the Kidneys and the Bladder are dreadfully debilitating; and it is, therefore, of the utmost importance to sustain the strength of the patient while under the influence of the medicines usually administered to effect a cure. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, being the most wholesome and active of all vegetable invigorants, can be conscientiously recommended as a valuable auxiliary in the treatment of cases of this class. In point of fact, it may be justly rated as something more than a mere auxiliary, inasmuch as it contains several diuretic and other elements, held to be essential to the eradication of renal diseases.

There are chronic affections of the kidneys which are considered incurable, such as Bright's disease, fatty degeneration, and confirmed diabetes; but life, even in these hopeless cases, may be greatly prolonged, and the sufferings of the patient greatly mitigated, by keeping up, as much as possible, the vigor of the system. It is all-important, in kidney complaints, to stimulate the appetite, facilitate digestion, strengthen the nerves, and regulate the bowels; and of all medicines at present known, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is best adapted to these ends. A strong physique has been known to struggle with Bright's disease for more than fifteen years, and it is probable that in all renal cases not necessarily fatal, invigoration is indispensable to a cure.

To Keep Eggs.—The following recipe has been tried by a lady who says she has preserved eggs by it for four years. Take one pound of unslacked lime and one pint of common salt to two gallons of soft water. Put your eggs on end, in layers, in any good tight vessel—a jar is good. When as full as you wish, make enough of the brine to completely cover the eggs. If you put the eggs down as gathered each day, add some of the brine, so as to keep all completely covered all the while.

In a battle a soldier was wounded in the head by a javelin. The surgeon examined the wound, and told the man as the weapon had not touched his brain, there was every prospect of his recovery. "Had I possessed any brain," said the soldier, "I should not have been in the battle."

Mrs. M'Carthy: "Yer wages is twinty cints short this wake, Moike." Mr. M'Carthy: "Yis, Mary Ann. We had an explosion on Toosday, an' the foorman docked me for the time I wuz in the air."

Boots and shoes may be rendered permanently waterproof by soaking them for some hours in thick soap water. A fatty acid is forced into the leather by the soap, which makes it impervious to the water.

At a young ladies' seminary, recently, during an examination in history, one of the pupils was interrogated thus: "Mary, did Martin Luther die a natural death?" "No," was the reply, "he was excommunicated by a bull."

Correct, perhaps.—There is no reason in the world why every woman should not be pleasant to look upon. A famous woman once said: "There are no ugly women; there are only women who do not understand how to make themselves beautiful."

"Is that cement any good?" asked a prospective purchaser of a pedler. "Any good?" was the reply, "Why, you could mend the break of day with that cement!"

Best thing to do when you go shopping with ladies—take notes.

Disorders * of * the * Liver.

THE Liver is easily disordered, and is especially apt to become sluggish and irregular in its action. When this is the case, the torpid and erratic organ should be roused and regulated with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. A few doses will generally be sufficient to accomplish the desired object; but if the complaint is confirmed and chronic, a persevering use of the medicine for a month or two, may be necessary to effect a complete cure. All troubles of this nature are accompanied with a more or less unnatural condition of the bowels, which, in the absence of a due supply of the mild evacuant secreted by the liver, become clogged with vitiated matter. Upon these obstructions the aperient principle of the Bitters acts with great directness, though not violently, removing them without pain.

The more prominent symptoms of liver disease are sallowness of the skin, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, pain in the right side, or between or under the shoulder blades, high colored urine, sick headache, an indisposition to exertion, and great physical debility, and that for every disturbance of the great secretive organ, the Bitters can be confidently recommended as a source of permanent relief.

Persons of a bilious habit should avail themselves of the preventive virtues of the Bitters. When the liver is over sensitive it should be braced up, renovated, and put in a better condition to resist and repel all morbid influences, and assuredly there is no medicinal preparation so well adapted to the purpose as that which for forty years has ranked as a standard tonic in all parts of the western world. By taking one or two doses of the Bitters daily, individuals of a bilious habit may secure exemption from bilious headache, bilious colic, bilious remittent fever, and all other complaints proceeding from a disordered liver, or a misdirected flow of bile.

THE DEVIL'S CHOICE.

"Honest Pat, if the devil his choice would make,
Which of us d'ye suppose he first would take?"
"Why, 'tis me, to be sure, he would carry away;
Your honor, he knows, he could have any day."

PROSPERITY.—Prosperity too often has the same effect on a Christian that a calm at sea has on a Dutch mariner, who frequently, it is said, in those circumstances, ties up the rudder, gets drunk and goes to sleep.

ELEPHANT herds are always led by female elephants. Just the same the world over. If anything is heard, the female takes the lead in circulating it.

A GARGLE for sore mouth and throat is to take four large spoonfuls of cider vinegar, four of water, a teaspoonful of common salt, and a very small portion of red or black pepper; gargle every hour. It is worth more than all the chlorate of potash in the country, and it cannot harm you.

HARD whitewash is nice made of eight pounds of whiting and one-fourth pound of white glue; cover the glue with cold water over night, and heat gradually in the morning until dissolved. Mix whiting with hot water, add the dissolved glue and stir together, adding warm water until about the consistency of cream.

SOME plays are so solemn that men have to go out of the theatre to smile.

THE WORTHY LABORER'S REWARD.

THE COLONEL.—"Well, Uncle, I see you have your Christmas turkey. You must have been working right hard lately, to get such a fine fellow as that."

UNCLE.—"Yas, sah; night work, mostly."

SOME one has strikingly said: "Christianity, if it means anything, means sixteen ounces to the pound, three feet to the yard, a just weight and just measure. It means honesty in all dealings, purity in all conversation, a charity as broad as the race, unflinching integrity, sympathy, humanity to man, loyalty to God."

From W. M. MERCER, M. D., Corunna, Ind., May 12, 1891:

I have sold your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for the past thirty years, and consider it as necessary to my stock of goods as quinine. It is staple.

WE should often be ashamed of our best actions, if the world were witness to the motives which impelled us.

To acquire great wealth shows great vigor, to keep it requires great wisdom, and to use it well is a virtue and an art.

COURAGE, brother, do not stumble,
Though the path be dark as night;
There's a star to guide the humble,
Trust in God and do the right.
Perish policy and cunning,
Perish all that fears the light,
Whether losing, whether winning,
Trust in God and do the right.

From REV. ALVIN RUCKER, Farmington, Mo., March 31, 1891:

I have been handling your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for about twenty-five years, and they give entire satisfaction; in fact I regard them the best in the market.

A PERSON 1 year old may expect to live 39 years longer; of 10 years, 51; of 20, 41; of 30, 34; of 40, 28; of 50, 21; of 60, 14; of 70, 9; of 80 years of age, 4 years longer.

THE quality of mercy may not be strained, but it frequently manages, somehow, to get exceedingly thin.

Attention to Small Ailments.

IT is related of Old Parr, who lived to the age of 152, that he attributed his long lease of life to the prompt attention he had always bestowed upon "small ailments." This hint from a man who saw the beginning and the end of three generations of his race, and died at last of sheer decay, is worth considering. If the first symptoms of disease were uniformly checked, by proper remedial treatment, the average duration of human life would unquestionably be greatly lengthened. A headache, sickness at the stomach, flatulency, a furred tongue, a feeling of apathy and languor, and many pains and aches—usually disregarded—are often the forerunners of serious illness: and as all such "minor ailments" quickly disappear under the operation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, common prudence suggests the necessity of keeping this famous antidote on hand, as a means of averting the dangerous disorders to which trifling disturbances of the system occasionally lead.

The great Sir Astley Cooper said that no human being ought to know from his sensations that he had a stomach or a liver. Let all who would not be painfully reminded of the existence of those organs, by dyspepsia and biliousness, watch the first symptoms, and fortify and invigorate the whole system with occasional doses of the Bitters.

HOT MILK AS A STIMULANT.—Hot milk is recommended by a medical journal as an excellent stimulant in cases of great fatigue and over exertion of body or mind. Its reviving influence, when taken as hot as it can be sipped, is remarkable. Its effect is promptly felt and lasting. This is especially true of overworked women, for whom physicians sometimes prescribe other mild stimulants. That momentary exhilaration felt is only the whip applied to the exhausted body, while hot milk is digested, and gives nourishment and real strength.

AN American, who was on his first trip on an English railway, quite held his breath at the rapid running. When his nervousness rather overcame him he approached the guard: "I say, guard," he ventured, "this is pretty fast traveling for safety, isn't it?" "Oh, no, sir," replied the guard, "we never run off the line here, sir." "But," said the Yankee, quickly resenting the patronage, "it is not the line—I'm afraid of running off your blanked little island.

IT is generally considered that the son of William Tell had an 'arrow escape.

THERE are those who need our helping;
Those who listen for our song;
Only those who have been tortured
Know the bitterness of wrong—
So, my heart, we'll gladly help them
Bear their burdens, you and I,
And will not stand back like cowards,
While the world is moving by.

To clean marble, brush off the dust with a piece of chamois; then apply with a brush a good coat of gum arabic, of about the consistency of thick mucilage; expose it to the sun or wind to dry. In a short time it will peel off. If all the gum should not peel off, wash it with clean water and a cloth. If the first application does not have the desired effect, it should be tried again.

A WET silk handkerchief, tied without folding over the face, is a complete security against suffocation from smoke; it permits free breathing, and at the same time excludes the smoke from the lungs.

THE young man who persuades himself that two can live as cheaply as one, can always find a girl ready to try the experiment.

THE TRUE IDEAS OF MEDICINE.

COMPARING the latest works on the practice of physic with those of the olden time, the reader is struck with the vast change that has taken place in the management of almost every form of disease. How patients lived through the crushing treatment to which they were subjected a hundred years ago is a marvel. Perhaps they had stronger constitutions than their descendants. Very few modern invalids could survive such outrages.

When Nature, prostrated by pain and suffering, called for succor in the fight against Disease, the medicos of long ago deliberately struck her when she was down. They assailed her with drastic purgatives; bled her into a state of syncope; blistered her with vast surfaces of cantharides; drugged her with mineral poisons, and dieted her on water gruel. Truly human beings are "fearfully and wonderfully made." If they were not, no man or woman could ever have escaped alive out of the hands of the ancient practitioner. There are a few of the same sort left yet, but luckily they are few and far between, and find but little favor with an enlightened public.

The faculty, happily for mankind, have changed sides. Formerly they took part with the malady. Now they have gone over to the patient. They help the sick in their battle for life, and are really entitled to be called "healers." Among the foremost medicines of the age, prepared in conformity with the grand idea that the sick must be sustained while their complaints are combated, is

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

What is the object of this great vegetable restorative? It is this: to keep up the vital strength and energy of the patient, while operating as an antidote to the materies morbi, or cause of his morbid condition. This is its operation as a curative; but as a preventive it covers a still more important field of usefulness, by putting the system in a perfect state of defence, and rendering it almost invulnerable to all the ordinary causes of sickness. To this invaluable property it owes the prestige it has acquired throughout this Continent, in South America, and in the West Indies. It is literally the household tonic of all the civilized portions of the Western Hemisphere—the closet remedy of hundreds of thousands of Americans, for their numerous ailments, and the trusted safeguard of all who are engaged in unhealthy occupations, or exposed in any way to unwholesome influences.

Wherever the preparation is introduced its efficacy soon becomes proverbial. There is no arguing against the logic of its operation. It is the only specific against febrile epidemics that has been uniformly successful in all climates; and as a means of sustaining the vital forces of the system under privation and exposure, its utility is not denied even by the most bigoted antagonists of new medicinal combinations.
